6. RECRUITMENT SOURCES

The Municipality may utilize the following sources for its recruitment drive:

6.1 Internal sources

6.1.1 Skills inventories: If the employee shortage is for higher-level employees, a skill inventory system may be used to search for the appropriate candidates. A skill inventory is simply a record system-listing employee with specific skills.

6.1.2 Job posting (Advertisement): Vacancies within the Municipalities are placed on notice boards or information bulletins. Details of the job are provided and employees can apply.

6.1.3 Inside moonlighting: In the case of a short term need for a small job which does not involve a great deal of additional work, the municipality could offer to pay incentives of various types e.g. Acting allowance for people who are not on the payroll.

6.2 External sources

6.2.1 Employment agencies: The municipality instructs the agency to recruit suitable candidates. The agency advertises or uses its placement database – the database of persons who have provided curriculum vitae to the agency which then seeks employment for them. The municipality may elect to do its own selection and unions shall be involved in the selection process.

- 6.2.2 Referral: This is a word of mouth technique in which present employees refer candidates from outside the Municipality. This is an inexpensive technique that is effective in finding candidates with specific skills quickly.
- 6.2.3 Professional bodies: Accounting, engineering and scientific institutes look after the interests of their members by allowing vacancy advertisements in their publications. Opportunities for networking are also afforded through conventions.
- 6.2.4 Head hunting: Top professional people are hunted through specialized agencies. The persons are approached personally with an offer to fill a vacancy. Alternatively, an advertisement is written with specific persons CV in mind.
- 6.2.5 Educational institutions: Schools, colleges, technicians and universities provide grass roots level opportunities for the municipality to pick the best of the crop. This is especially important in areas of skills shortages and professional appointments.

7. ADVERTISEMENT

- 7.1 Where Council has determined that the recruitment source to be utilized in the filling of vacancy shall be by way of internal advertisement the Human Resources Department shall proceed to place such advertisement on all notice boards at the various workplaces of the municipality.
